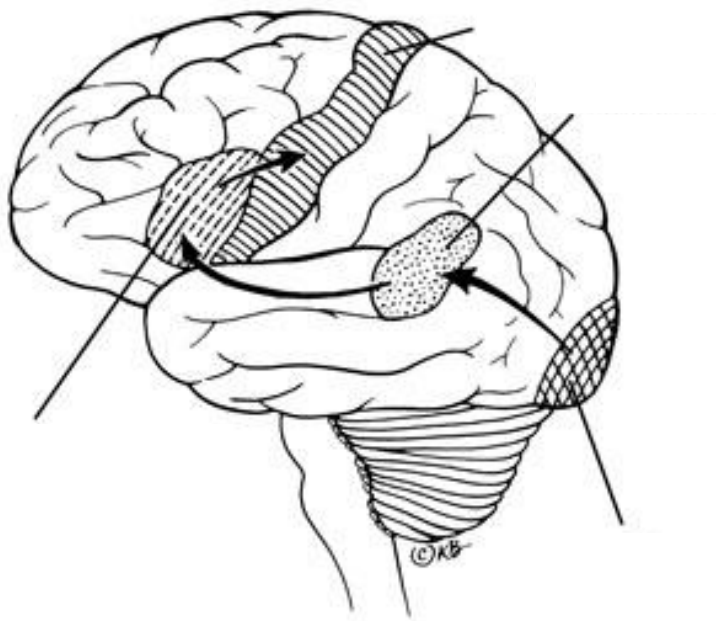
THE ART OF STORYTELLING
USING STORIES

Michael Smith
mike@slideheroes.com

SLIDEHEROES

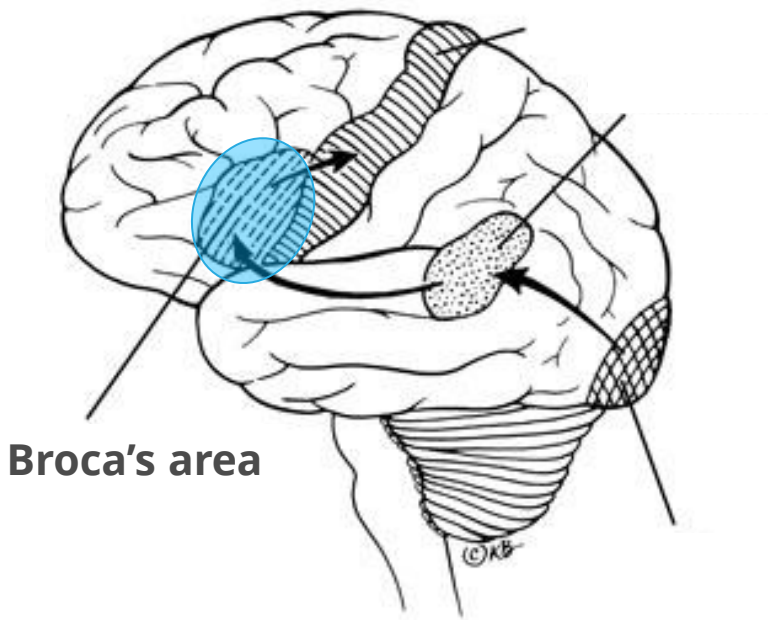
Lascaux,
France

LANGUAGE PROCESSING AREAS OF BRAIN



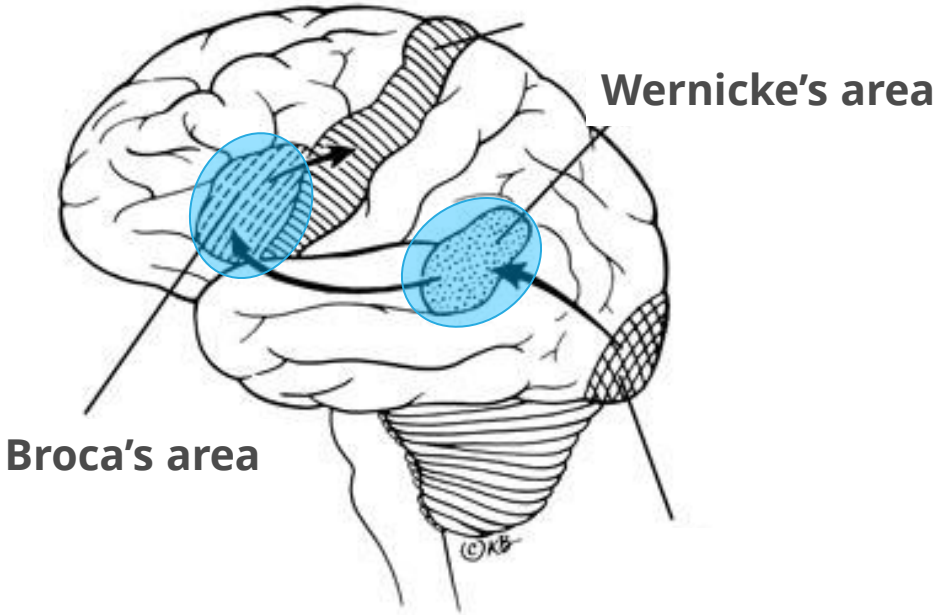
- Areas of brain where words are decoded into meaning

LANGUAGE PROCESSING AREAS OF BRAIN



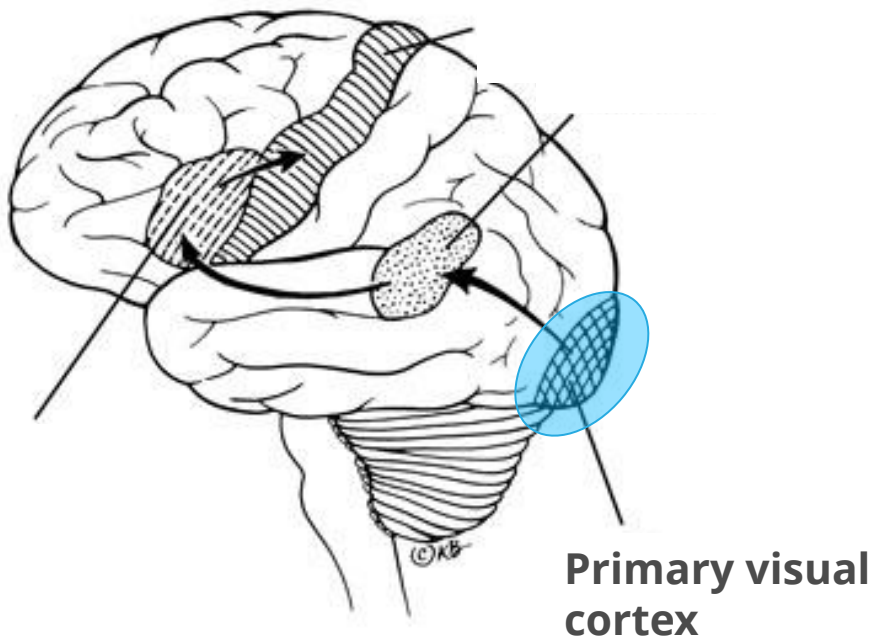
- Areas of brain where words are decoded into meaning
- Broca's area associated with the production of language, or language outputs

LANGUAGE PROCESSING AREAS OF BRAIN



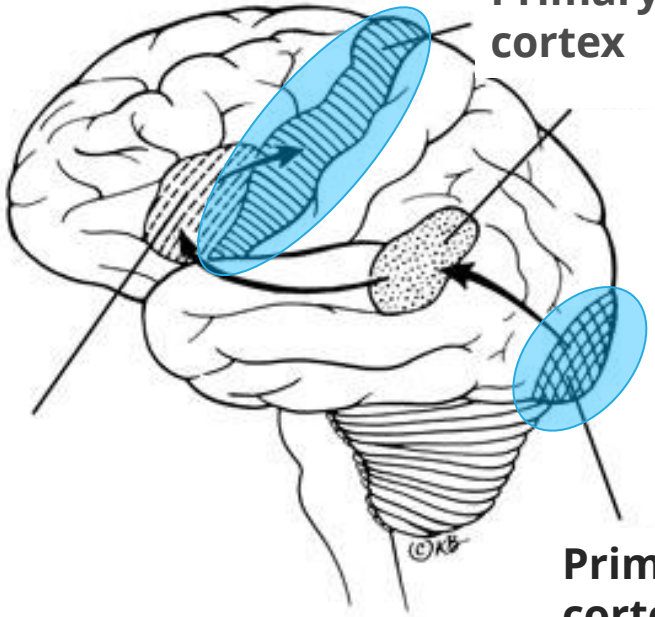
- Areas of brain where words are decoded into meaning
- Broca's area associated with the production of language, or language outputs
- Wernicke's area, which is associated with the processing of words that we hear being spoken, or language inputs

LANGUAGE PROCESSING AREAS OF BRAIN



- Areas of brain where words are decoded into meaning
- Broca's area associated with the production of language, or language outputs
- Wernicke's area, which is associated with the processing of words that we hear being spoken, or language inputs

LANGUAGE PROCESSING AREAS OF BRAIN



- Areas of brain where words are decoded into meaning
- Broca's area associated with the production of language, or language outputs
- Wernicke's area, which is associated with the processing of words that we hear being spoken, or language inputs

4 QUSTIONS ABOUT STORIES

WHAT IS STORY?

WHAT ADVANTAGES DO STORIES PROVIDE?

WHAT ARE THE CHARACTERISTICS OF A GOOD STORY?

HOW DO I USE STORIES IN PRESENTATIONS?

Using Stories

WHAT IS A STORY?

TEACHING THROUGH STORIES A PARABLE

In a faraway land, a boy went to learn at the feet of a wise man day after day. The wise man always instructed the boy through stories.

TEACHING THROUGH STORIES A PARABLE

In a faraway land, a boy went to learn at the feet of a wise man day after day. The wise man always instructed the boy through stories.

One day, the boy asked “Master, why do you always teach through stories? Would it not be faster to teach me directly?”

TEACHING THROUGH STORIES A PARABLE

In a faraway land, a boy went to learn at the feet of a wise man day after day. The wise man always instructed the boy through stories.

One day, the boy asked “Master, why do you always teach through stories? Would it not be faster to teach me directly?”

To this, the wise man answered “Please bring me some tea.”

TEACHING THROUGH STORIES A PARABLE

In a faraway land, a boy went to learn at the feet of a wise man day after day. The wise man always instructed the boy through stories.

One day, the boy asked “Master, why do you always teach through stories? Would it not be faster to teach me directly?”

To this, the wise man answered “Please bring me some tea.”

The boy rose and prepared a cup of tea in a white china cup.

TEACHING THROUGH STORIES A PARABLE

In a faraway land, a boy went to learn at the feet of a wise man day after day. The wise man always instructed the boy through stories.

One day, the boy asked “Master, why do you always teach through stories? Would it not be faster to teach me directly?”

To this, the wise man answered “Please bring me some tea.”

The boy rose and prepared a cup of tea in a white china cup.

The wise man took the cup from the boy and sipped it, then asked “Why did you bring me a cup when I only asked for the tea?”

WHAT ARE STORIES?

STORIES ARE AN EXCHANGE OF MEANING SHARED FROM ONE PERSON TO ANOTHER

WHAT ARE STORIES?

STORIES ARE AN EXCHANGE OF MEANING SHARED FROM ONE PERSON TO ANOTHER

“For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them.”

Aristotle, The Nicomachean Ethics

Using Stories

WHAT ADVANTAGES DO STORIES PROVIDE?

WHY USE STORIES?

1 Increase trust by creating a bond between storyteller and listener

- We connect with others when they tell stories of experiences we can relate to

WHY USE STORIES?

1. Increase trust by creating a bond between storyteller and listener
2. Help get the audience to agree with you

1. Stories stop disagreement
   - Stories relax the audience
   - Creates 'story-listening trance'
   - Critical thought paused

WHY USE STORIES?

1. Increase trust by creating a bond between storyteller and listener
2. Help get the audience to agree with you

1. Stories stop disagreement
   - Stories relax the audience
   - Creates 'story-listening trance'
   - Critical thought paused
2. Stories encourage agreement

WHY USE STORIES?

1. Increase trust by creating a bond between storyteller and listener
2. Help get the audience to agree with you
3. Make messages more meaningful, understandable and memorable

- We find it easier and more efficient to process stories
- Audience more likely to repeat them to others

Using Stories

WHAT ARE THE CHARACTERISTICS OF A GOOD STORY?

CHARACTERISTICS OF MEMORABLE STORIES

SIMPLICITY

The essential core of an idea, expressed succinctly. Sounds bites are not the goal here, proverbs are

CHARACTERISTICS OF MEMORABLE STORIES

SIMPLICITY
The essential core of an idea, expressed succinctly. Sounds bites are not the goal here, proverbs are

UNEXPECTEDNESS
Things that surprise cut through the clutter, grab our audiences attention and get noticed

CHARACTERISTICS OF MEMORABLE STORIES

SIMPLICITY
The essential core of an idea, expressed succinctly. Sounds bites are not the goal here, proverbs are

UNEXPECTEDNESS
Things that surprise cut through the clutter, grab our audiences attention and get noticed

CONCRETENESS
Specificity and concrete language make our ideas clear and understandable

CHARACTERISTICS OF MEMORABLE STORIES

SIMPLICITY
The essential core of an idea, expressed succinctly. Sounds bites are not the goal here, proverbs are

UNEXPECTEDNESS
Things that surprise cut through the clutter, grab our audiences attention and get noticed

CONCRETENESS
Specificity and concrete language make our ideas clear and understandable

CREDIBILITY
A grain of truth that will allow our audience to believe our ideas

CHARACTERISTICS OF MEMORABLE STORIES

SIMPLICITY
The essential core of an idea, expressed succinctly. Sounds bites are not the goal here, proverbs are

UNEXPECTEDNESS
Things that surprise cut through the clutter, grab our audiences attention and get noticed

CONCRETENESS
Specificity and concrete language make our ideas clear and understandable

CREDIBILITY
A grain of truth that will allow our audience to believe our ideas

EMOTION
For people to care about an idea they must first feel something

Using Stories

HOW DO I USE STORIES IN PRESENTATIONS?

USE STORIES AT THE BEGINNING

1. Use a springboard story

USE STORIES AT THE BEGINNING

1. Use a springboard story
2. Use an analogy

USE STORIES AT THE BEGINNING

1. Use a springboard story
2. Use an analogy
3. Use an image as a metaphor

USE STORIES IN THE MIDDLE AND AT THE END

1. Use stories in the middle to exemplify and give meaning to key points you are making

USE STORIES IN THE MIDDLE AND AT THE END

1. Use stories in the middle to exemplify and give meaning to key points you are making

2. Use a story at the end to provide one last inspiring thought before you finish.

Using Stories

SOME FINAL THOUGHTS

A COUPLE OF FINAL THOUGHTS

- Exchange giving suggestions for telling stories
- Be strategic in what stories you tell and when

LESSON SUMMARY

A STORY IS A CUP

A story is a cup for your ideas

INCREASES TRUST

Stories increase trust, limit disagreement, and make messages more memorable

MAKE THEM MEMORABLE

Memorable stories are simple, unexpected, concrete, credible and generate emotion

USE SPARINGLY

Use stories at the beginning, middle or end – but use them sparingly